B. Michelle Johnson is the Director of Development for Legal Voice, a progressive feminist organization using the power of the law to make change in the Northwest. Prior to this, she worked in fundraising and communications at Planned Parenthood of Western Washington and Planned Parenthood of Greater Cleveland. She is an instructor for the University of Washington Certificate in Nonprofit Management program. Michelle received her undergraduate degree from the University of Iowa in playwriting.

Her volunteer experiences include serving in the Peace Corps in Cote d'Ivoire, chairing the Community Advisory Board for HIV/AIDS Trail Unit, and serving as President of the Board and managing communications for the Jet City Rollergirls. She is in her third year as an Advancement Northwest Board member where she's the Social Media Chair and Forum for Strategic Planning Co-Chair.

When Michelle is not passionately advocating for women's and LGBTQ people's rights, she is traveling, hiking our beautiful mountains, running endless mountain trails or trying out a new microbrewery with her wife. She loves to listen to music while cooking.
